A guide to help families make the most out of their time during parent-teacher conferences

1

Make a list of as many questions as you can regarding your child

Write each question as it comes to mind

Change any thoughts or statements into questions

2

Choose the three most important questions for you. Mark them with an X

3

Find different types of questions

Closed-ended questions - can be answered with "yes" or "no"

Open-ended questions - require an explanation

Practice changing questions to get different information - open to closed, closed to open
